Military Friendly® Employer Schneider Converts Military Experience to Driving Experience

Credit for Military Experience Program Recognizes Service, Increases Starting Pay

GREEN BAY, Wis. (November 5, 2015) — Schneider, one of the nation's largest truckload carriers and recognized as a 2016 Military Friendly Employer by GI Jobs®, knows that those who have served – or continue to serve – their country bring an exceptionally high level of commitment and skill to their work. In an effort to take its commitment to military personnel to another level, Schneider is proud to announce its improved Credit for Military Experience Program. While Schneider has long had a program that provided new hires with credit for military driving experience, the program has recently been updated to ensure that a new driver's complete military tenure is recognized and rewarded.

Specifically, the program offers two different opportunities for military members to increase starting pay:

- New drivers with experience driving a truck during his or her service will see 100 percent of their military time converted to Schneider driving experience. That means four years of military driving experience will equal four years at Schneider.
- New drivers who served in the military in a nontransportation capacity will see 25 percent of their military time served qualify toward Schneider experience. In this case, four years of military experience will equal one year of Schneider driving experience.

Schneider's Credit for Military Experience Program is a way to reward military members for serving their country, while also transitioning veterans back into the civilian world. The program acknowledges the time invested in developing career experience, as well as the intangible skills military members possess, such as self-motivation, working through complex tasks and time management. Current and former military personnel see that experience pay off immediately when they begin work at Schneider.

“We’ve been committed to serving individuals in the military for 80 years, and 27 percent of our driving force is current or former military,” offered Rob Reich, senior vice president at Schneider and a former member of the U.S. Army. “We’re proud to enhance our program and provide career opportunities with a company that respects their incredible skills, experiences and leadership.”

This program is available to candidates who have served in the military and were discharged in the last 12 months or are actively serving in the National Guard or Reserves.
